

Guidelines for Parents

WELCOME EVERYBODY!

This is a very special library time just for you!

Here are a few “rules” to keep in mind when our program is in session. Your cooperation will help all who attend to enjoy and profit from these sessions.

1. Parent participation is key to the success of this program! You are best equipped to help your child focus on our activities and show your child it’s fun!
2. Please put toys and food away. They distract your child and other children. If bottles, blankets and other not-to-be-parted with items are necessary we will work with it. Breastfeeding is also okay if need be.
3. You will probably have lots to share with other parents. We would like to do the program first, when the children are fresh. Afterwards, you are welcome to socialize in the Children’s Department.
4. If your child is crying loudly or otherwise distracting the group, or in another sense loosing control, please feel free to step out and “regroup.” Sometimes a brief change of scenery will make a difference.
5. RELAX! It is not expected that your child will sit still and participate in each activity. Our goal is to have fun with rhymes, songs, books, and other language building play.
